Daybreak

The time is night-time,
with its silence.
And a faint
dim light appears far
Away into the darkness.
It creeps, silently.
Slowly, oh ever so
slowly.
It rises so very
silently and slowly.
Then, as if it was a beginning,
it's a dimness spreading.
Across the vastness,
stillness, and silence.
It is opening.
Slowly.
Silently.
And it is here.
Beautiful,
Beautiful Sunrise.

MOTHER NATURE

Mother Nature is the one who grows the wild trees, assists the sweet smelling flowers to open their delicate petals, and walks across the fluffy white clouds and gently shakes the sleeping sun each morning. Then she fills her gold pails and sprinkles dew down upon the thirsty earth.

Those who believe in Mother Nature are called Nature's children. They will roam the earth, smell the flowers, witness the dawn, climb the grassy green hills, and be loved by Mother Nature for ever and ever.

by Cindy Buksa

To Believe

To believe is Fairy Tales,
Although not a child.
To believe that all countries
Never really go wild.
To believe that all people
Are at ease, never tense,
Is to have a child's Innocence.

To believe that the clouds
Are a soft kitten's fur,
To believe a dried lake
Is a bucket that's full.
To believe that love
Is not a duty
Is to have a child's Love of Beauty.

To believe that everything
Has a scientific answer,
To believe that a ballerina
Is nothing but a dancer,
To believe nothing happens
When a silver baton is twirled,
Is to leave the child's fantasy land,
For the dismal adult world.

Hillcrest students camp out

Grade 9 in woods at 25 below

By Bob Remington
Of The Journal

ATHABASCA — They call this area "the land of the Whispering Hills," which for the past two nights have been shouting a cold message to 38 Edmonton boys.

With an attitude that would put complaining Edmonton pedestrians to shame, the Grade 9 boys from Hillcrest Junior High School, 16400 80th Ave., and four male Hillcrest teachers are coping with the 25-below-zero temperatures by sleeping in primitive lean-to's at Lawrence Lake, 30 miles northwest of here.

Their schoolmates 120 miles away could be grumbling over walking to school during the cold snap, but three days and two grueling nights at the Lawrence Lake campsite would make it seem like spring by comparison.

"Everyone is cold but none of us are in really bad shape," said physical education instructor Ross Meek after checking campsites Tuesday morning.

"This is a pretty good group. Everyone seems well-prepared."

The 42-man group split up into about a dozen small camps in a thick, wooded area on the shore of the lake Monday and are expected back in Edmonton late today.

Constant daytime movement, either by gathering wood or sojourning out on the lake for ice fishing, was the order.

The night before, bonfires cracked the sub-zero air as huddled bodies tried to absorb the heat before crawling into sleeping bags and numbing their fingers on metal zippers that burned with the cold.

Despite the overpowering odds and the desire to give in, most said they were comfortable during the night.

"I don't know why they come," said counsellor Charles Bailey as he looked around at the camps Tuesday. "Each has his own reason — the food, the company, or even just to keep warm is to succeed."

No matter why, the winter camp (under the direction of the public school board's outdoor education program), draws the athlete, the scholar and the average student, who for a change are not competing with each other, but with themselves and the elements.

Their bundled, stiff figures moved slowly about the camps Tuesday morning, brushing fresh-fallen snow off food and equipment, struggling to light fires which would be their only source of comfort during the day.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

I'd like to make this perfectly clear: this year has been a terrific year for me and I'm sure most of the other students feel the same way! The pride and good spirit of all the students during the year has helped all of the activities to be a great success.

I'd like to thank Mr. Bailey and the Students' Council for the help they gave me in the planning of the student functions. Without all these people my job as President wouldn't have been so enjoyable. Even when it got right down to the dirty work, like cleaning up after dances and noon-hour activities, there were more helping hands than brooms to give them. Of course, the people belonging to those hands did the cleaning up so they could skip classes, but so what - the work got done.

Thanks to you Mr. Bright and Mr. Ellestad, and thanks to all the students. I just hope the grade 7 and grade 8 students will support next year's President.

EDITOR'S MESSAGE

I am proud to have been the editor of the 1974-75 yearbook. It has been quite a learning experience. There have been many enjoyable times and a few unforgettable times, but only the best of times come to my mind.

I would like to give my special thanks and appreciation to Mr. McDonald and my supporting staff; without their assistance this book would have been an absolute disaster.

I would like to say "Good Luck" to next year's editor. I hope you have the fantastic guidance which I've received.

Thanks to everyone involved.
